FARM CONFEREES DROP DEBENTURE CLAUSE

HOUSE, SENATE COMMITTEE NOW IN AGREEMENT

DEBENTURE PLAN IS STRONGLY OPPOSED BY PRESIDENT
HOOVER

STABILIZING CORPORATIONS AU-THORIZED TO ENGAGE IN MAR-KETING OPERATIONS

Washington, June 5.—(UP)—The debenture plan so strongly opposed by President Hoover and administration leaders in the house was stricken from the farm relief bill today by the house and senate conferees who reached a final agreement on the measure.

Finding the house adamant to the tariff bounty plan the senate conferees surrendered as had been expected. When a vote was taken the senate conferees were 3 to 2 in favor of abandoning the plan which the senate had tacked on the bill by a 47 to 44 vote three weeks ago.

Chairman McNary, Capper of Kansas and Ransdell of Louisiana voted against the debenture while Norris of Nebraska and Smith of South Carolina voted to retain it despite the pressure from the house. The senators had voted exactly the same way when the debenture plan was adopted in the senate.

Few other changes were made in the bill. Its title was revised to be "the agricultural marketing act." The senate provision was adopted giving stabilization corporations the right to serve co-operative organizations not only as a buying unit but as a merchandising agency.

Expenses of the proposed federal farm board were raised to $1,500,000 as the senate had provided.

The theory of the administration measure was preserved. The board is to be composed of nine members to be selected by the president and confirmed by the senate. Members are to receive $12,000 a year salary and in selecting them the president is cautioned to keep in mind the advisability of giving each section of the country representation; i. e., one member from the wheat belt, one for the corn belt, and so on.

The agreement will be submitted to the house first. But it cannot be made ready until Friday. The conferees are to meet again tomorrow to read over the bill for errors. Arrangements already have been made to rush the agreement through the house, perhaps, without even a record vote. The house heard the agreement was near and adjourned until tomorrow soon after it met.

McNary, who is fostering the legislation in the senate, announced he expected the agreement to be sent over to the senate by the house late Friday afternoon. He will force its immediate consideration, he said, but he is doubtful whether a final vote can be taken before the middle of next week.

Norris already has served notice he intends to fight the action of the conferees from the senate floor. He is aroused because the house conferees stood unanimously against taking the debenture plan to the house for a vote.

After the senate passed the bill, the house took the position that the senate's endorsement of the debenture plan was unconstitutional because the constitution provides revenue raising measures should originate in the house.

Norris considers it unprecedented for senate conferees to abandon their position without seeking to force a vote in the house.

McNary's position is that the senate
conferees did all they could.

"They just put it up to us cold that we would have to take this and get a bill signed by the president, or get nothing," McNary said. "We took what we could get. I think it is a very good bill as it stands."

SEEKS TAX ON STOCK SPECULATION

Washington, June 5.—(UP)—Senator Glass, Dem., Va., announced today he pose a tax upon stock speculation.

propose a five per cent tax on stock sales when the stock is sold within 60 days of its purchase.

Teutons Saddled With Specific Annuity Debt

GIRL DAZED OVER 150 HOURS FROM CRACKED SKULL

Minneapolis, June 5.—(UP)—Ann Hudok, 20-year-old stenographer, nearly her 150th hour of unconsciousness at General hospital today, the result of accepting "a ride home" from a downtown dance hall with an unknown man.
Physicians, who have battled five days for her life, said today her condition was still critical.
She was found in the street where she evidently had been thrown from the motor car, her skull fractured and her arms and jaw broken.

Hospital attendants said she has shown no signs of returned consciousness.

FUTURE OF CHILD SLAYER RESTS WITH JUVENILE COURT

JIMMY HARRISON, AGE NINE, OF SPRINGFIELD, ILL., CALM
IN SITUATION

HELD TOO YOUNG TO COMPRE-HEND HIS KILLING 16 YEAR OLD PLAYMATE

Springfield, Ill., June 5.—(UP)—
The future of Jimmy Harrison, nine-year-old slayer of two children, rested in the hands of a juvenile court judge today while the lad read a batch of comic papers in a detention home, not understanding what all the fuss was about.

Jimmy, a slight figure of a boy in a worn mustard color sweater, was held for action in the juvenile court after a coroner's jury of business men decided that while he was too young to comprehend the seriousness of killing Norman Conwill, 16, his playmate, nevertheless some action should be taken to shape his future.

Five years ago Jimmy was in similar trouble because he set fire to the clothing of 21-months-old Robert Endres "to see a bonfire," he said at the time.

Three possibilities remain for Jimmy — he may be sent to the St.
Charles correction school, he may become a ward of the juvenile court or he may be paroled to another family.

death toll of a triple explosion and fire at the Cities Service Refining Company's plant last midnight.

Shortly before noon police found the charred body of another victim in the ruins. A third employee was

East Braintree, Mass., June 5.—

more were in a hospital and nearly a score were suffering from minor injuries after a triple explosion and fire at the Cities Service Refining Company's plant early today.

Lives of approximately 100 workmen employed on the reservation were imperiled when three tanks, each containing 70,000 gallons of oil, blew up in rapid succession, flashing flames over a wide area, causing the earth to tremble for miles around.

Police estimated that the explosions, and the fire which raged for two hours after they occurred, resulted in property damage that would reach $500,000.

Those unaccounted for were Night
Superintendent Grant Chase and Wallace Minot, a workman. It was unofficially reported that several other employees had not been ac-

DIED AS HE LOOKED UPON GRAVE STONE

Kansas City, Mo., June 5.—(UP)—An old man sat in Forest Hill cemetery and peered with age dimmed eyes at an inscription of a tombstone at his side which read:

"Susan Carter, 1855-1924 and C. C.
Carter, 1855—"
A bunch of flowers he had placed on the grave Memorial day were withered.

Under the inscription was a verse:
"As you are now, so once was I,
"As I am now, you soon shall be."
"Prepare for death and follow me."
As the old man mumbled the last line, his lips faltered and ceased to move.

"Heart disease," an ambulance doctor pronounced.

Today a stone cutter chiseled "1929" after "C. C. Carter" and finished the epitaph.

2 AUTOMOBILE LOADS OF BANDITS RAID AMERY

BIND NIGHT MARSHAL OLAF
JACOBSON OF WISCON-SIN TOWN

ROB DRY GOODS STORE AND GAR-AGE OF $8,000 IN MONEY AND MERCHANDISE

Amery, Wis., June 5.—(UP)—Two automobile loads of bandits raided Amery early today, bound Night
Marshal Olaf Jacobson and escaped with an estimated $8,000 in money and merchandise from the Sjobeck dry goods store and a garage.

The bandits, five in all, entered the village at 1:30 A. M. When Jacobson approached the cars one of the raiders stepped out, covered the marshal with a gun and said:

"Be quiet and we won't hurt you."
Jacobson was tied securely and placed in the back seat of a "big red sedan."

After a short ride about the village streets the bandit cars pulled up before Sjobeck's dry goods store and Jacobson was carried into Fay's garage next door.

Sjobeck's was then looted of clothing and both the safe and cash register were rifled. A check-up revealed that the Sjobeck store loss included 200 suits, 300 pairs of trousers, 15 overcoats and a number of hats, caps and other articles.

Jacobson said the bandits then returned to the garage, robbed the cash register of an undetermined sum of money and drove away.

"They didn't hurt me at all," the marshal said. "I was treated gently."

"As soon as they were gone I began to work at my bonds and in about 45 minutes I had untied them.
I notified Chief of Police Frank Barley, Sjobeck and Fay."

The marshal said he did not clearly see the second car.

CROP CONDITIONS IN NORTHWEST ARE REPORTED EXCELLENT

St. Paul, June 5.—(UP)—Crop conditions throughout the northwest to the Pacific coast are excellent and everything points to a good agricultural year, Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern railway, declared here today upon his return from an inspection tour. Budd was accompanied by other railroad leaders including Arthur C. James, New York, and Louis W. Hill.

The explosions lasted 45 minutes, sending up showers of incandescent
scoriae.

A group of tourists who were watching the display were forced to seek safety when landslides at the edge of the crater began and the incandescent lava fell near them.

It was estimated that the overflow of lava totalled approximately 10-480,000 cubic yards in volume, almost half the total quantity of the overflow during the eruption of 1926.

Natives of Terzigno here evacuated in motor lorries under the direction of the military. They had clung to their homes until the lava flow appeared almost certain to engulf the town.

Terrific explosions occurred in the crater, hurling huge boulders from the eruptive hole and filling the hollow between it and the volcano's cone. A column of smoke which sometimes rose three miles into the air was emitted throughout the day.

The lava flow left the eruptive center at a speed of nine feet a second, slackening to a slow, inevitable crawl as it pushed up against the tons of cinders, ash and hot rock that already lay on the hillside.

The woods near Terzigno and the forest of Princess Ottalano were burned and crushed before the moving mass of hot cinders. Farm houses in the outlying sections of the town also were pushed down by the lava flow.

Workers Entombed in Two Mines During Mendoza Earthquakes

Buenos Aires, June 5.—(UP)—An undetermined number of workers were entombed in two mines during the recent earthquakes in the province of Mendoza, according to dispatches to the newspaper La Razon today.

Relief from Mendoza and San Ragael was rushed to the mines immediately upon receipt of the news. The mines were owned by the firm of Richardson and Huber.

The reports stated also that two new shocks were felt in the stricken area today, but no casualties were reported.

20 STUDENTS TRAPPED BY FLOW OF LAVA

WERE ENDEAVORING TO WIT-NESS LATEST ERUPTION OF
MT. VESUVIUS

SEVERAL WERE INJURED BY BURSTING OF LAVA AS THEY TRIED TO FLEE

Naples, Italy, June 5.—(UP)— Twenty students were trapped by a flow of lava today while they were endeavoring to witness the latest eruption of Mt. Vesuvius at close hand. Several were injured by the bursting of the lava as they tried to flee.

An official communique said the eruption had increased in violence, with the flames attaining a height of 1,500 feet at 4 A. M. The eruption was considered probably the most spectacular since 79 A. D., when Pompeii and Herculaneum were destroyed.

The molten lava from the volcano, creeping down Hell Valley like a huge, crackling serpent, was scarcely 1,000 feet from the main square of Terzigno today and was threatening reservoirs supplying large towns on the mountain's sides.

Terzigno's reservoirs and several outlying houses already had been destroyed by the mass of smoking cinders, 32 feet high and more than 200 feet wide, as it pushed slowly down the mountain towards level ground.

The lava flow had a violent recurrence last night when giantic waves of lava suddenly burst from the eruptive opening and filled the entire crater, overflowing into Hell Valley.

The explosions lasted 45 minutes,
sending up showers of incandescent
scoriae.

A group of tourists who were watching the display were forced to seek safety when landslides at the edge of the crater began and the incandescent lava fell near them.

REICH MUST CARRY BURDEN FOR 58 YEARS

GERMANY'S REPARATIONS DEBT TO ALLIES IS SET AT OVER
8 BILLION DOLLARS

WITH INTEREST TOTAL FIGURE
WILL RUN TO OVER 23 BILLION

By RALPH HEINZEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, June 5.—After ten years of intermittent negotiations to fix the amount which the German government is able without endangering her financial stability to pay to the allied creditor powers in liquidation of her obligations arising from the world war, the Reich now has a specific burden which it must carry for the next 58 years.

It took the second Dawes committee four months of painstaking labor to reach an agreement which was acceptable to all concerned, debtors and creditors alike. The financial giants of the world toiled untiringly during these months and their toils were crowned with success.

Owen D. Young's compromise plan, conceived by the American chairman of the conference of reparations, exports at a moment when the negotiations seemed doomed to failure, has been agreed to by the allies and by Germany. Only the formality of affixing the signatures is necessary now to make the plan official and this is expected either tomorrow or Friday.

Thus for the next 58 years Germany will have a specific annuity debt to pay to the allies—France, Belgium, Great Britain and Italy, and in a smaller measure, the United States and Japan. As soon as the conference report is completed details of payment methods will be published.

In the meantime, the United Press is able today to state on excellent authority that the capital total Germany's reparations debt is worth to the allies is approximately $8,812,- 000,000. But with interest over the long period the total which Germany will pay to the creditors in the form of annuities will be approximately $23,105,000,000.

The first period Young plan payments will extend over a stretch of 37 years. During these years the annuities will average about $480,- 000,000. The second period will be much lighter for the Germans, when the averages will be brought down to about $238,000,000, with the exception of the last year when they will pay only $214,000,000.

The agreement just reached is expected to have as far-reaching an effect on the economic stability of the world as the Versailles agreement did on the political situation after the world war. The agreement as it will be signed before the end of this week is a complete adjustment of the reparations problem.

DIED AS HE LOOKED UPON GRAVE STONE

Kansas City, Mo., June 5.—(UP)—An old man sat in Forest Hill cemetery and peered with age dimmed eyes at an inscription of a tombstone at his side which read:

"Susan Carter, 1855-1924 and C. C. Carter, 1855—"

A bunch of flowers he had placed on the grave Memorial day were withered.

Under the inscription was a verse: "As you are now, so once was I, "As I am now, you soon shall be. "Prepare for death and follow me." As the old man mumbled the last line, his lips faltered and ceased to move.

"Heart disease," an ambulance doctor pronounced.

Today a stone cutter chiseled "1929" after "C. C. Carter" and finished the epitaph.

2 AUTOMOBILE LOADS OF BANDITS RAID AMERY

BIND NIGHT MARSHAL OLAF JACOBSON OF WISCONSIN TOWN

ROB DRY GOODS STORE AND GARAGE OF $8,000 IN MONEY AND MERCHANDISE

Amery, Wis., June 5.—(UP)—Two automobile loads of bandits raided Amery early today, bound Night Marshal Olaf Jacobson and escaped with an estimated $8,000 in money and merchandise from the Sjobeck dry goods store and a garage.

The bandits, five in all, entered the village at 1:30 A. M. When Jacobson approached the cars one of the raiders stepped out, covered the marshal with a gun and said:

"Be quiet and we won't hurt you."

Jacobson was tied securely and placed in the back seat of a "big red sedan."

After a short ride about the village streets the bandit cars pulled up before Sjobeck's dry goods store and Jacobson was carried into Fay's garage next door.

Sjobeck's was then looted of clothing and both the safe and cash register were rifled. A check-up revealed that the Sjobeck store loss included 200 suits, 300 pairs of trousers, 15 overcoats and a number of hats, caps and other articles.

Jacobson said the bandits then returned to the garage, robbed the cash register of an undetermined sum of money and drove away.

"They didn't hurt me at all," the marshal said. "I was treated gently."

"As soon as they were gone I began to work at my bonds and in about 45 minutes I had untied them. I notified Chief of Police Frank Barley, Sjobeck and Fay."

The marshal said he did not clearly see the second car.

20 STUDENTS TRAPPED BY FLOW OF LAVA

WERE ENDEAVORING TO WIN NESS LATEST ERUPTION OF MT. VESUVIUS

SEVERAL WERE INJURED BY BURSTING OF LAVA AS THEY TRIED TO FLEE

Naples, Italy, June 5.—(UP)—Twenty students were trapped by a flow of lava today while they were endeavoring to witness the latest eruption of Mt. Vesuvius at close hand. Several were injured by the bursting of the lava as they tried to flee.

An official communique said the eruption had increased in violence, with the flames attaining a height of 1,500 feet at 4 A. M. The eruption was considered probably the most spectacular since 79 A. D., when Pompeii and Herculaneum were destroyed.

The molten lava from the volcano, creeping down Hell Valley like a huge, crackling serpent, was scarcely 1,000 feet from the main square of Terzigno today and was threatening reservoirs supplying large towns on the mountain's sides.

Terzigno's reservoirs and several outlying houses already had been destroyed by the mass of smoking cinders, 32 feet high and more than 200 feet wide, as it pushed slowly down the mountain towards level ground.

The lava flow had a violent recrudescence last night when gigantic waves of lava suddenly burst from the eruptive opening and filled the entire crater, overflowing into Hell Valley.

The explosions lasted 45 minutes, sending up showers of incandescent scoriae.

A group of tourists who were watching the display were forced to seek safety when landslides at the edge of the crater began and the incandescent lava fell near them.

It was estimated that the overflow of lava totalled approximately 10-480,000 cubic yards in volume, almost half the total quantity of the overflow during the eruption of 1926.

Natives of Terzigno here evacuated in motor lorries under the direction of the military. They had clung to their homes until the lava flow appeared almost certain to engulf the town.

Terrific explosions occurred in the crater, hurling huge boulders from the eruptive hole and filling the hollow between it and the volcano's cone. A column of smoke which sometimes rose three miles into the air was emitted throughout the day.

The lava flow left the eruptive center at a speed of nine feet a second, slackening to a slow, inevitable crawl as it pushed up against the tons of cinders, ash and hot rock that already lay on the hillside.

The woods near Terzigno and the forests of Princess Ottaviano were burned and crushed before the moving mass of hot cinders. Farm houses in the outlying sections of the town also were pushed down by the lava flow.

REICH MUST CARRY BURDEN FOR 58 YEARS

GERMANY'S REPARATIONS DEBT TO ALLIES IS SET AT OVER 8 BILLION DOLLARS

WITH INTEREST TOTAL FIGURE WILL RUN TO OVER 23 BILLION

By RALPH HEINZEN (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, June 5.—After ten years of intermittent negotiations to fix the amount which the German government is able without endangering her financial stability to pay to the allied creditor powers in liquidation of her obligations arising from the world war, the Reich now has a specific burden which it must carry for the next 58 years.

It took the second Dawes committee four months of painstaking labor to reach an agreement which was acceptable to all concerned, debtors and creditors alike. The financial giants of the world toiled untiringly during these months and their toils were crowned with success.

Owen D. Young's compromise plan, conceived by the American chairman of the conference of reparations experts at a moment when the negotiations seemed doomed to failure, has been agreed to by the allies and by Germany. Only the formality of affixing the signatures is necessary now to make the plan official and this is expected either tomorrow or Friday.

Thus for the next 58 years Germany will have a specific annuity debt to pay to the allies—France, Belgium, Great Britain and Italy, and in a smaller measure, the United States and Japan. As soon as the conference report is completed details of payment methods will be published.

In the meantime, the United Press is able today to state on excellent authority that the capital total Germany's reparations debt is worth to the allies is approximately $8,812,000,000. But with interest over the long period the total which Germany will pay to the creditors in the form of annuities will be approximately $23,105,000,000.

The first period Young plan payments will extend over a stretch of 37 years. During these years the annuities will average about $480,000,000. The second period will be much lighter for the Germans, when the averages will be brought down to about $238,000,000, with the exception of the last year when they will pay only $214,000,000.

The agreement just reached is expected to have as far-reaching an effect on the economic stability of the world as the Versailles agreement did on the political situation after the world war. The agreement as it will be signed before the end of this week is a complete adjustment of the reparations problem.

Origin Lost in Antiquity

The martial air for song, "The Campbells Are Coming" is described as being very old. Music authorities say that this piece is simply regarded as an old Scotch folk song, and no one knows the origin of the music, so far as authorship is concerned.

Fix Up that CELLAR ENTRANCE

The entrance to the cellar is likely to be neglected. Ricketty stairway, down which a careless step will send you hurtling—cracked walls, and unsightly trash. True pride in the home will not permit these "ugly spots" to remain, even though they may be hidden from sight. EVERY part of the house should be in ship-shape order.

All troops with over 200 points for the first third of the year are classed as standard troops. To be a standard troop at the end of August a troop will have to have 400 points or over. BENEFIT DANCE TOMORROW NIGHT

Brainerd Ladies Band Sponsors Event
at U. C. T. Hall; Music by
Lou's Band

LADIES ENTER BAND CONTEST

Dance to Furnish Transportation
Costs to St. Paul June
21, 22 and 23

Another big dance will be given at the U. C. T. Auditorium tomorrow evening under auspices of the Brainerd Ladies Band, under direction of Mrs. Winifred Cronk Ziebell. The purpose of the event is to raise the necessary transportation costs of the band to St. Paul on June 21, 22 and 23, where they have entered the State Band Festival and Contest on those dates. All other expenses are to be defrayed by the sponsors of the event, and it is hoped that the turnout at the dance here tomorrow will be such that the entire sum for transportation will be secured.

Forty bands from every section of the state are entered in this contest and the majority of them will have their train fares paid by the cities which they represent. However, as the Brainerd Ladies Band receives no remuneration from the city government, it is attempting to finance its own expenses to and from St. Paul, and the hearty co-operation of local citizens will be greatly appreciated by the ladies in their endeavors to create much favorable comment toward Brainerd through their efforts to represent the city in a very efficient and highly attractive manner at the State Band Contest. The new uniforms and the large silken banner, inscribed: "The Brainerd Ladies Band of Minnesota," combined with real musical ability, will go a long way toward putting Brainerd on the map in a musical way.

The ladies sponsored a dance at the U. C. T. Hall several weeks ago and it was such a huge success it is expected that even a larger and more enthusiastic crowd will be on hand to enjoy the festivities tomorrow evening. Tickets are being sold in advance and they are reported to be going fast. However, they will also be procurable at the hall.

Lou's popular band will furnish the music for the evening.

Crocker's Arithmetic, the first complete manual for "numerists," was published September 3, 1877, by Sir Roger L'Estrange. The author, who died before it was published, became proverbial in England as a master of mathematical subjects. His book was a "best seller" for nearly a century.

BENEFIT DANCE TOMORROW NIGHT

Brainerd Ladies Band Sponsors Event
at U. C. T. Hall; Music by
Lou's Band

LADIES ENTER BAND CONTEST
Dance to Furnish Transportation
Costs to St. Paul June
21, 22 and 23

Another big dance will be given at the U. C. T. Auditorium tomorrow evening under auspices of the Brainerd Ladies Band, under direction of Mrs. Winifred Cronk Ziebell. The purpose of the event is to raise the necessary transportation costs of the band to St. Paul on June 21, 22 and 23, where they have entered the State Band Festival and Contest on those dates. All other expenses are to be defrayed by the sponsors of the event, and it is hoped that the turnout at the dance here tomorrow will be such that the entire sum for transportation will be secured.

Forty bands from every section of the state are entered in this contest and the majority of them will have their train fares paid by the cities which they represent. However, as the Brainerd Ladies Band receives no remuneration from the city government, it is attempting to finance its own expenses to and from St. Paul, and the hearty co-operation of local citizens will be greatly appreciated by the ladies in their endeavors to create much favorable comment toward Brainerd through their efforts to represent the city in a very efficient and highly attractive manner at the State Band Contest. The new uniforms and the large silken banner, inscribed: "The Brainerd Ladies Band of Minnesota," combined with real musical ability, will go a long way toward putting Brainerd on the map in a musical way.

The ladies sponsored a dance at the U. C. T. Hall several weeks ago and it was such a huge success it is expected that even a larger and more enthusiastic crowd will be on hand to enjoy the festivities tomorrow evening. Tickets are being sold in advance and they are reported to be going fast. However, they will also be procurable at the hall.

Lou's popular band will furnish the music for the evening.

NOT ENOUGH NAMES

THE Spokane Spokesman-Review says there must be many tired men in the United States postal service who spend a good deal of their time wishing that the people who named towns had shown a little more inventiveness. With twenty-eight Washingtons, twenty-three Clevelands and twenty-two Buffalos in the United States, and with the average person's handwriting being what it is, the postoffice department has more troubles than it really ought to have. There are even six Philadelphias and eleven Bostons.

Sometimes the addresser of a letter helps the postal clerks by specifying the state he wants his letter to go to, but often it would take a clairvoyant to tell whether the state is Va., Pa. or La. California urges its correspondents to write Calif. instead of Cal., to avoid confusion with Col. Many a mail sorter has ruined his eyesight trying to determine if it was N. J. or N. Y.

And even if it is plainly and unmistakably N. Y., what of it? In New York state twenty-three towns are named Auburn and sixteen Geneva.

Once a town has been named, it is next to impossible to change it. When a new town is started, the chances are it will be named after the hero of the hour, in common with a dozen or so other new towns. Twenty years from now any number of thriving hamlets named Lindbergh or Hoover will be getting each other's mail.

GOOD BUSINESS CONDITIONS

THE city of Brainerd is interested in the welfare of the Northern Pacific railway company, as we have the large repair shops here. If business in the territory is good, it means the use of much equipment which in turn means increase in repair work. Increased passenger business in turn affects freight business.

The long haul passenger business on the railway has shown a marked stimulus since May 15, when summer rates became effective, according to E. E. Nelson, passenger traffic manager. There are factors, he said, which indicate a heavy tourist season.

Inquiries about tours and destinations are 15 per cent in excess of 1928 for the corresponding period. Bookings for special trains, special parties and individuals are showing an increase. Transcontinental trains are carrying heavy business for this period of the year.

The Northern Pacific ran special trains to the Brainerd Lake Region last year on the occasion of two fraternity and sorority conventions of girls at Breezy Point Lodge. The trains from Brainerd to Pequot ran over the Minnesota & International and at Pequot quick transfers were made of passengers and baggage to the lodge.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

NEWSPAPER advertising influences a greater portion of the buying public than all other advertising media combined, according to a survey conducted by Dean Robert A. Johnson of the College of Business Administration, Marquette University.

The results show that the public regards newspaper advertising the undisputed leader in effectiveness, with magazines second, billboards third, mail communications fourth and radio fifth. Car cards, motion pictures, hand bills and other media received scattering attention.

Advertising in the opinion of a large number interviewed, is a dominant factor in American industry because it makes people work harder in order to get money to buy the things they see advertised. Dean Johnson's findings were published in a recent issue of Sales Management magazine.

AN IMPORTANT CONVENTION

ONE of the important conventions of the season to be held in Brainerd is that of District No. 15, Land O' Lakes Creameries, set for June 11 at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The speaker of the day will be John Brandt, president of the Land O' Lakes Creameries, a man who has an outstanding reputation as a creamery man and speaker.

All dairymen, creamery operators and creamery officials are urged to attend. Buttermakers making the highest scores in the workmanship and efficiency contest will be awarded prizes.

MUCH pity and poetry has been wasted on the rich man of the old days who had so much money he did not know how to spend it. But civilization these days seems to consist of new ways of spending money. The luxury of today becomes the necessity of tomorrow. In order to make our money supply go farther, the government has reduced the size of the paper money.

THE Brainerd Gun club has a shoot every Thursday evening and 15 or more of the sportsmen turn out at the old grounds on the Holland hill tract in Northeast Brainerd. Some talk has been heard of transferring the range to a section of the Brainerd Country club grounds.

WE consider it poor taste on the part of newspapermen to attempt to trace the whereabouts of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride. They are seeking solitude, bothering no one and are happiest if let alone. Their world is very complete just now without any border of inquiring reporters.

THE Park Region Luther College Choir, known as the "choir with a soul," will give a concert at Pine River armory on Friday evening, June 7. The choir has rounded out only two years of existence, yet in that short time it has captivated hundreds of audiences.

WORK on 76 miles of new paving, 84 miles of new grading and a number of trunk highway bridges will get under way this month, as announced by C. M. Babcock, Commissioner of Highways.

THE old adage reads that "every dog has his day," and last night the council's consideration of the dog question consumed an hour. It is a most aggravating problem.

THAT little city girl only 4 years old who wandered 72 hours in the woods without food or water and survived exposure has a good constitution.

THERE is to be a lot of harmony at Williston, N. D., where a band tournament will be held on June 18.

A FIVE-YEAR-OLD FORECAST MORE THAN REALIZED

JUNE 7 1924

"* * * the Chrysler is, in reality, the first step in the general revision of motor car design which is bound to follow its advent. * * * For it is an entirely new type of car, built on a new kind of engineering, which produces results radically different from any heretofore registered in the industry."

CHRYSLER'S INFLUENCE ON YOUR CAR

It has become an axiom of the motor car industry that much of what comes tomorrow originates in what Chrysler engineering does today.

For five years, Chrysler has been the acknowledged leader in thrilling performance. For five years, Chrysler has led the way in individuality and modern smartness of design.

Those in possession of the facts know that there is scarcely a motor car today that does not owe some improvement in its make-up to Chrysler—and has not become a better car by reason of Chrysler engineering achievement.

Evolution is a nice compliment to Chrysler leadership, of course. But the mere copying of features cannot equal the complete Chrysler results.

To you who are about to choose a new car, a natural question arises: Why not enjoy a Chrysler itself, so long as Chrysler smartness, comfort, performance and quality are the goals to which other cars are striving? Let us show you in a test of your own choosing the superiority of Chrysler to anything aspiring to compete with Chrysler.

Service

Business today is based upon service. The "grab and run" manufacturer is almost extinct. Advertising has played its part in his passing. By contrast with the open methods of others, it has thrown his operations into such sharp relief that it has left him no recourse. His failure was inevitable.

People have come to depend upon consistently advertised merchandise. They have confidence in the manufacturer who places himself on record month after month as to the merits of his product. They know he will maintain that product at the standard he has set, not only for their protection but for his own. Should he drop below, the buying public would soon discover it, and his business would be faced by ruin. No manufacturer who is spending large sums to produce, advertise and sell an article is going to take that risk.

Quality, utility and value are the things uppermost in the mind of the advertiser today. Improving his product, making it more useful to you, giving you greater value for your money, these are his aims. When he succeeds, he tells you about it—in the advertisements.

If you neglect the advertisements, you are missing one of the most vital features in this newspaper.

THE city of Brainerd is interested in the welfare of the Northern Pacific railway company, as we have the large repair shops here. If business in the territory is good, it means the use of much equipment which in turn means increase in repair work. Increased passenger business in turn affects freight business.

The long haul passenger business on the railway has shown a marked stimulus since May 15, when summer rates became effective, according to E. E. Nelson, passenger traffic manager. There are factors, he said, which indicate a heavy tourist season.

Inquiries about tours and destinations are 15 per cent in excess of 1928 for the corresponding period. Bookings for special trains, special parties and individuals are showing an increase. Transcontinental trains are carrying heavy business for this period of the year.

The Northern Pacific ran special trains to the Brainerd Lake Region last year on the occasion of two fraternity and sorority conventions of girls at Breezy Point Lodge. The trains from Brainerd to Pequot ran over the Minnesota & International and at Pequot quick transfers were made of passengers and baggage to the lodge.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

NEWSPAPER advertising influences a greater portion of the buying public than all other advertising media combined, according to a survey conducted by Dean Robert A. Johnson of the College of Business Administration, Marquette University.

The results show that the public regards newspaper advertising the undisputed leader in effectiveness, with magazines second, billboards third, mail communications fourth and radio fifth. Car cards, motion pictures, hand bills and other media received scattering attention.

Advertising in the opinion of a large number interviewed, is a dominant factor in American industry because it makes people work harder in order to get money to buy the things they see advertised. Dean Johnson's findings were published in a recent issue of Sales Management magazine.

AN IMPORTANT CONVENTION

ONE of the important conventions of the season to be held in Brainerd is that of District No. 15, Land O' Lakes Creameries, set for June 11 at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The speaker of the day will be John Brandt, president of the Land O' Lakes Creameries, a man who has an outstanding reputation as a creamery man and speaker.

All dairymen, creamery operators and creamery officials are urged to attend. Buttermakers making the highest scores in the workmanship and efficiency contest will be awarded prizes.

MUCH pity and poetry has been wasted on the rich man of the old days who had so much money he did not know how to spend it. But civilization these days seems to consist of new ways of spending money. The luxury of today becomes the necessity of tomorrow. In order to make our money supply go farther, the government has reduced the size of the paper money.

THE Brainerd Gun club has a shoot every Thursday evening and 15 or more of the sportsmen turn out at the old grounds on the Holland hill tract in Northeast Brainerd. Some talk has been heard of transferring the range to a section of the Brainerd Country club grounds.

WE consider it poor taste on the part of newspapermen to attempt to trace the whereabouts of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride. They are seeking solitude, bothering no one and are happy if let alone. Their world is very complete just now without any border of inquiring reporters.

THE Park Region Luther College Choir, known as the "choir with a soul," will give a concert at Pine River armory on Friday evening, June 7. The choir has rounded out only two years of existence, yet in that short time it has captivated hundreds of audiences.

WORK on 76 miles of new paving, 84 miles of new grading and a number of trunk highway bridges will get under way this month, as announced by C. M. Babcock, Commissioner of Highways.

THE old adage reads that "every dog has his day," and last night the council's consideration of the dog question consumed an hour. It is a most aggravating problem.

THAT little city girl only 4 years old who wandered 72 hours in the woods without food or water and survived exposure has a good constitution.

THERE is to be a lot of harmony at Williston, N. D., where a band tournament will be held on June 18.

A FIVE-YEAR-OLD FORECAST MORE THAN REALIZED

1924

"* * * the Chrysler is, in reality, the first step in the general revision of motor car design which is bound to follow its advent. * * * For it is an entirely new type of car, built on a new kind of engineering, which produces results radically different from any heretofore registered in the industry."

CHRYSLER'S INFLUENCE ON YOUR CAR

It has become an axiom of the motor car industry that much of what comes tomorrow originates in what Chrysler engineering does today.

For five years, Chrysler has been the acknowledged leader in thrilling performance. For five years, Chrysler has led the way in individuality and modern smartness of design.

Those in possession of the facts know that there is scarcely a motor car today that does not owe some improvement in its make-up to Chrysler—and has not become a better car by reason of Chrysler engineering achievement.

Emulation is a nice compliment to Chrysler leadership, of course. But the mere copying of features cannot equal the complete Chrysler results.

To you who are about to choose a new car, a natural question arises: Why not enjoy a Chrysler itself, so long as Chrysler smartness, comfort, performance and quality are the goals to which other cars are striving? Let us show you in a test of your own choosing the superiority of Chrysler to anything aspiring to compete with Chrysler.

Service

Business today is based upon service. The "grab and run" manufacturer is almost extinct. Advertising has played its part in his passing. By contrast with the open methods of others, it has thrown his operations into such sharp relief that it has left him no recourse. His failure was inevitable.

People have come to depend upon consistently advertised merchandise. They have confidence in the manufacturer who places himself on record month after month as to the merits of his product. They know he will maintain that product at the standard he has set, not only for their protection but for his own. Should he drop below, the buying public would soon discover it, and his business would be faced by ruin. No manufacturer who is spending large sums to produce, advertise and sell an article is going to take that risk.

Quality, utility and value are the things uppermost in the mind of the advertiser today. Improving his product, making it more useful to you, giving you greater value for your money, these are his aims. When he succeeds, he tells you about it—in the advertisements.

If you neglect the advertisements, you are missing one of the most vital features in this newspaper.

MELO softens hard water and makes it a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. A tablespoonful in the dishpan cuts grease, saves hands and makes the soap much more effective.

ATTACK ATHLETIC STANDING OF PURDUE UNIVERSITY

MAKING ATHLETICS A PROFESSIONAL MATTER, CHARGED

EVERETT CASE, COACH OF THE FRANKFORT HIGH CAGE TEAM, ISSUES STATEMENT

ASSERTS HE WILL TAKE WITNESS ALONG TO SUPPORT HIS CHARGES

Frankfort, Ind., June 5.—(UP)—Everett Case, coach of the Frankfort high school basketball team, champions of Indiana, issued a statement here today charging Purdue University athletic leaders with recruiting and professionalizing athletics.

Case announced he would appear before Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten conference athletic commissioner, in Chicago Thursday to make definite charges against Ward "Piggy" Lambert, Purdue basketball coach.

Case, in a statement to the Frankfort school board, said he would take witnesses with him to support his charges.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, June 5.—The Big Ten status of the University of Iowa has reached the probationary stage, with the Hawkeyes apparently having a chance of again becoming a member "in good standing" before the end of this year.

Suspended a week ago by the conference faculty athletic committee because of rule violations, the Hawkeyes sent a delegation here to present a reinstatement plea to a subcommittee of the suspending body, but the plea was denied.

However, Iowa was given the satisfaction of knowing that if it puts its "own house in order" it has a good chance of obtaining cancellation of the suspension before it goes into effect January, 1930.

The Iowa delegation, headed by President Walter H. Jessup and including Professors Louis Pelzer and Edward Lauer was said to have based its plea for reinstatement on a "new order" in charge.

Lauer recently took charge of athletics, succeeding Paul Belting, whose resignation, asked for by the university, takes effect July 1.

The subcommittee was composed of Professors James Paige, Minnesota; Thomas French, Ohio, and George Goodenough, Illinois. Referring to the request for reinstatement, this committee said it believed that the time was "premature."

"We believe that Iowa should have time to correct the conditions which brought on the charges," the committee said.

Jessup said that Iowa would start its reorganization immediately and he hoped the school soon would be restored to good standing.

BRAINERD TENNIS STARS MEET BEST AT CROSBY-IRONTON

ALICE NOLAN, B. H. S. GIRLS' CHAMPION, DEFEATS DONELDA McALPINE, C-I. CHAMP

GOODWILL SETS PLAYED AT THE IRONTON COURTS YESTERDAY, C-I WINS TWO DOUBLES

A goodwill tennis tournament was played at Ironton yesterday between C-I's best girl players and a group from Brainerd, both groups showing brilliant tennis at times.

On the afternoon's play, Crosby-Ironton showed a slight superiority but as a group the two were well matched.

The sensation of the afternoon came when Alice Nolan, Brainerd girl champion, defeated Donelda McAlpine, C-I. champ, 6-4, 9-6 and 6-4.

The two Morin sisters, Emily and Doris Geist, Brainerd, by 6-0, 6-1.

Ruth Hill and Julia Hill, sisters, defeated Dorothy Kinney and Louise Clausen, 6-0, 8-10, 6-0.

Alice Nolan and Doris Geist won from Donelda McAlpine and Marjorie Shannon, 6-2, 4-6 and 6-4.

Alice Morin defeated Helen Bane, 5-7, 6-0, 6-2, while Marjorie Shannon defeated Doris Geist, 6-1.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Babe Herman, with the Brooklyn Dodgers, is a terrific hitter, but a very poor fielder.

Nashville will start the season with a new owner, new manager and all but three of the regulars new players.

Walter Tauscher, of the Pittsburgh pitching staff, was in 17 games last year, but did not win or lose a single contest.

The Birmingham team that won the Southern association pennant last year is succeeded by an almost new aggregation.

The Herr Hendricks of Cincinnati is quoted in a syndicate article as saying, "I would not trade Critz for Hornsby." Naturally.

Curly Byrd, brother of Sam Byrd of the Yankees, has signed to play the outfield for Montgomery of the Southeastern league.

Eleanor Churchill holds the woman's record for throwing a baseball with a heave of 234 feet 5 1/4 inches, made at the Robinson seminary in 1923.

Harry Wandell, president of the Childress club of the new Red River Valley league, has announced the signing of Nick Carter as manager of his team.

Johnny Cooney, Braves pitcher, is coming back. This is his tenth year with the Braves and three years ago he was one of the "most valuable" players.

Duke university, besides playing its neighbors of the South, will meet Penn, Penn State, Fordham, New York U, Villa Nova, Navy and Princeton in baseball.

Earl Mack, son of Connie Mack, has been deputized to help in lining up the Martinsburg team in the Blue Ridge league. The Athletics recently took over this club as a farm.

Wally Hood, an outfielder with the Los Angeles team for seven years, has been sold to Seattle. With Statz, Schulerich, Webb and Berger, the Angels did not need him.

Marty Karow, former Ohio State football and baseball star, who had a trial with the Red Sox two years ago, is seeking an infield berth with Waco in the Texas league now.

Ray Caldwell, former Cleveland Indian and New York Yankee pitcher, has signed with the Akron Central league club. He will be used as pitching coach and will take his turn in the box.

Complete satisfaction with San Antonio, Texas, as a spring training camp is seen in the fact that the New York Giants recently announced they would train there the next three years.

"Tute" Brandon, veteran umpire in the Piedmont league, takes his spring training as seriously as any player. Early in March he makes a round of the southern colleges, working in 25 or 30 games.

The New England league schedule calls for 126 games with the opening May 1. The transfer of the Worcester club to New Bedford, the Salem club to Lowell and Attleboro to Haverhill was ratified.

Marty Baylin, knuckleball pitcher, has been returned to the Asheville club of the Sally league by Memphis. The right-hander had failed to come to a salary understanding with the Southern league club.

WINNERS HIT FEW BUT TIMELY; LOOM GETS TWO TRIPLES

SOUTHSIDE STAGES TWO DOUBLE PLAYS AT CRUCIAL MOMENTS TO HOLD Y.

FINAL INNING RALLY BY "Y" NETS TWO RUNS; DOUBLE PLAYS SENSATIONAL

Although they outthit their opponents, the Y. M. C. A. lost to the Southsiders, 8 to 3, in a city league ball game at Rosko's flying field last evening.

In breaking in four new players the Y. M. C. A. made four errors while the S. S. played flawless ball in the field. Timely hits gave the Southsiders the victory.

The winners got going right away in the first. Hanson got a single, Loom cracked out a three-base hit and came in on the same hit after Carlson made a freak wild throw to third. Hautala walked and stole second and scored when Swan Erickson singled.

Two walks and two singles brought in three runs for the Southsiders in the third while in the fifth Loom swiped the ball for a triple, Hautala and Erickson struck out, Bernard walked and on a double steal Loom came home.

Nutting did the scoring for the South Side boys in the sixth when he hit Fitzharris who threw wild to first, making second on the error and scoring on Hanson's single.

George Erickson, playing his first game of the season for the Y. M. C. A., got a double to start off the game and came home on Peterson's triple.

A double play, Hautala to Bedal to Hanson, prevented the Y. M. C. A. from scoring in the 3rd. Engbretson was caught on second and Erickson on first, Wally Anderson hit for a double, Peterson got to first after being hit by a pitched ball and Houghton fled to center.

In the seventh, Fitzharris singled, Engbretson was hit by a pitched ball and George Erickson filled the sacks on a single base hit. Wally Anderson got a two-base hit, scoring Fitzharris and Engbretson. The game came to a sensational finish by S. S. making a double play, catching Erickson at the home plate and Wally Anderson at second.

Hitting honors went to Loom who cracked out two triples and a single.

Fitzharris relieved Whitlock as pitcher for the "Y" in the fourth while Hautala went the distance for the winners.

BARNETT'S TRIGO WINS ENGLISH DERBY TODAY

WALTER GAY RUNS SECOND AND BRIENZ IS THIRD IN RACE

TRIGO WAS AN OUTSIDER IN THE BETTING, PAYING 33 TO 1 ODDS

By TOM CREEDON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Epsom Downs, England, June 5.—W. Barnett's Trigo won the English derby today.

Walter Gay was second and Brienz third.

Trigo was an outsider in the betting, paying 33 to 1. Walter Gay was 100 to 3 and Brienz, 50 to 1.

Twenty-six went to the post in the world's greatest horse race. They were off at 3:07 P. M.

Lord Derby's Hunter Moon ran fourth.

Lord Astor's Cragadour and Major McCalmont's Mister Jinks, the popular choices in the betting, were out of the money. Kopf, also heavily played, fell during the running of the race.

A tremendous throng, including Prince of Wales, witnessed the race which was run in a light rain. En Grade finished fifth.

Trigo won by a length and a half. Walter Gay was two lengths in front of Brienz.

Hunter's Moon set the pace for most of the race, after which he tired. Lord Derby's colt was leading at the quarter mile, with Le Voleur in pursuit. At Tattenham Corner, the winner moved up in contention and raced Hunter's Moon into defeat.

The winner's time for the race, which is at approximately a mile and a half, was 2:36 2-5.

J. Marshall rode the winner. J. Fox was astride Walter Gay. R. Jones on Brienz and T. Weston on Hunter's Moon.

J. McGOVERN SEES BRILLIANT FUTURE FOR GOLF COURSES

SAYS PINE BEACH COURSE IS EQUAL TO ANY IN NORTHWEST; WILL WRITE ABOUT IT

MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL SPORTS EDITOR FAVORS HOLDING STATE TOURNAMENT THERE

Johnny McGovern, sports editor of the Minneapolis Journal, places the Pine Beach golf course on Gull lake on an equal basis with the best in the northwest.

After playing the course this week with his host, Henry C. Mills, Brainerd, the sports authority remarked that the greens at Harrison's was even superior to the Minnikahda course where the 1927 National Amateur golf tournament was held.

Mr. McGovern states that he sees no reason why the state amateur tournament cannot be arranged to be held at the Pine Beach course after housing accommodations have been provided. He will express his opinion on the course in an illustrated story to be published in the Journal at an early date.

PLANT WILD RICE IN FIVE LAKES

FIRST SHIPMENT OF 100 POUNDS IS BEGINNING IN STOCKING OF LAKES

E. W. McCullough, commissioner of fish and game, sent 100 pounds of wild rice today to local sportsmen through A. P. Cardie, district deputy game warden, Carl Wright of Brainerd and Frank Baldrige of Island View Lodge on Cross Lake planted the rice in five different lakes, three west of Brainerd and two near Cross lake.

This is the beginning of the stocking of district lakes with the natural food for migratory birds. Mr. McCullough believes strongly that one of the most important parts of the game commission's work is the restocking of the lakes with fish and food for wild fowl. It is his intention to stock many of the lakes with wild rice which attracts the puddler ducks, such as the mallard, the teal, etc., and to plant other lakes with foods such as wild celery and wapato which attracts the deep feeder ducks such as the blue bill, greater scaup or large blue bill and canvasback.

"We have in this territory many mallards, teal and blue bill, but the canvasback are not nearly as common as they could be made by the planting of more wild celery.

"Game clubs in the south have in recent years been planting food for water fowls and in lakes where ducks have been unknown for years, splendid shooting was reported last fall, Carl Wright said.

Can Golden Bears Repeat?

© 1929, King Features Syndicate, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

ON THE afternoon of June 24th, the historic Poughkeepsie regatta will be paddled on the equally historic Hudson river.

Every year, this rowing classic attracts the best crews in the country. The fans of the sport either drape their frames along the river bank in advantageous positions, or are tooted along the banks of the Hudson on open air cars manipulated by the railroads. (Incidentally we wonder what they do with those trick cars for the other 364 days of the year?)

Last year, the Golden Bears of the University of California, under the tutelage of Ky Ebright, former University of Washington cox-

swain, won the big event. They did more than win it. They even shattered a record which had stood for years and been highly respected. The Bears of 1928 were a miraculous crew. They not only tipped over the water bucket at Poughkeepsie but they won the elimination series in the trials for the Olympics, which were held at Philadelphia, and at Amsterdam, later in the Summer, they beat the world's best at the Olympiad.

Ebright set a high mark for himself last year. He had the opportunity, of course, to do so because of the Olympics. There'll be no Olympics this Summer but Ky and his Bears are determined to repeat their last year's feat on the Hudson later in the month. The California coach has practically the same crew he used last Summer back again this year and already they have shown that they are a tough gang to beat. Earlier in 1929, the Washington Huskies took the spray from the California oars. Yet it's a certainty that the Bears will meet some very keen competition on the Hudson. However, Ebright is confident and the rowers around Berkeley, who were out for his scalp before the 1928 victories, seem to have vanished and are cheering him on to greater efforts.

It's no secret that his victories on the water came just in time to keep him with the California Bears. A repeater this month would make him as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar.

MAKING ATHLETICS A PROFESSIONAL MATTER, CHARGED

EVERETT CASE, COACH OF THE FRANKFORT HIGH SCHOOL TEAM, ISSUES STATEMENT

ASSERTS HE WILL TAKE WITNESS ALONG TO SUPPORT HIS CHARGES

Frankfort, Ind., June 5.—(UP)—Everett Case, coach of the Frankfort high school basketball team, champions of Indiana, issued a statement here today charging Purdue University athletic leaders with recruiting and professionalizing athletes.

Case announced he would appear before Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten conference athletic commissioner, in Chicago Thursday to make definite charges against Ward "Piggy" Lambert, Purdue basketball coach.

Case, in a statement to the Frankfort school board, said he would take witnesses with him to support his charges.

Chicago, June 5.—The Big Ten status of the University of Iowa has reached the probationary stage, with the Hawkeyes apparently having a chance of again becoming a member "in good standing" before the end of this year.

Suspended a week ago by the conference faculty athletic committee because of rule violations, the Hawkeyes sent a delegation here to present a reinstatement plea to a subcommittee of the suspending body, but the plea was denied.

However, Iowa was given the satisfaction of knowing that it puts its "own house in order" if it has a good chance of obtaining cancellation of the suspension before it goes into effect January, 1930.

The Iowa delegation, headed by President Walter H. Jessup and including Professors Louis Pelzer and Edward Lauer was said to have based its plea for reinstatement on a "new order" in charge.

Lauer recently took charge of athletics, succeeding Paul Belting, whose resignation, asked for by the university, takes effect July 1.

The subcommittee was composed of Professors James Paige, Minnesota; Thomas French, Ohio, and George Goodenough, Illinois. Referring to the request for reinstatement, this committee said it believed that the time was "premature."

"We believe that Iowa should have time to correct the conditions which brought on the charges," the committee said.

Jessup said that Iowa would start its reorganization immediately and he hoped the school soon would be restored to good standing.

BRAINERD TENNIS STARS MEET BEST AT CROSBY-IRONTON

ALICE NOLAN, B. H. S. GIRLS' CHAMPION, DEFEATS DONELDA McALPINE, C-I. CHAMP

GOODWILL SETS PLAYED AT THE IRONTON COURTS YESTERDAY. C-I WINS TWO DOUBLES

A goodwill tennis tournament was played at Ironton yesterday between C-I's best girl players and a group from Brainerd, both groups showing brilliant tennis at times.

On the afternoon's play, Crosby-Ironton showed a slight superiority but as a group the two were well matched.

The sensation of the afternoon came when Alice Nolan, Brainerd girl champion, defeated Donelda McAlpine, C-I. champ, 6-4, 6-5 and 6-4.

The two Morin sisters, Emily and Alice, outplayed Helen Bane and Doris Geist, Brainerd, by 6-0, 6-1.

Ruth Hill and Julia Hill, sisters, defeated Dorothy Kinney and Louise Clausen, 6-0, 8-10, 6-0.

Alice Nolan and Doris Geist won from Donelda McAlpine and Marjorie Shannon, 6-2, 4-6 and 6-4.

Alice Morin defeated Helen Bane, 5-7, 6-0, 6-2, while Marjorie Shannon defeated Doris Geist, 6-1.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Babe Herman, with the Brooklyn Dodgers, is a terrific hitter, but a very poor fielder.

Nashville will start the season with a new owner, new manager and all but three of the regulars new players.

Walter Tauscher, of the Pittsburgh pitching staff, was in 17 games last year, but did not win or lose a single contest.

The Birmingham team that won the Southern association pennant last year is succeeded by an almost new aggregation.

The Herr Hendricks of Cincinnati is quoted in a syndicate article as saying, "I would not trade Critz for Hornsby." Naturally.

Curly Byrd, brother of Sam Byrd of the Yankees, has signed to play the outfield for Montgomery of the Southeastern league.

Eleanor Churchill holds the woman's record for throwing a baseball with a heave of 234 feet 5 3/4 inches, made at the Robinson seminary in 1923.

Harry Wandering, president of the Chess club of the new Red River Valley league, has announced the signing of Nick Carter as manager of his team.

Johnny Cooney, Braves pitcher, is coming back. This is his tenth year with the Braves and three years ago he was one of the "most valuable fingers."

Duke university, besides playing its neighbors of the South, will meet Penn, Penn State, Fordham, New York U, Villa Nova, Navy and Princeton in baseball.

Earl Mack, son of Connie Mack, has been deputized to help in lining up the Martinsburg team in the Blue Ridge league. The Athletics recently took over this club as a farm.

Wally Hood, an outfielder with the Los Angeles team for seven years, has been sold to Seattle. With Statz, Schumlicher, Webb and Berger, the Angels did not need him.

Marty Karow, former Ohio State football and baseball star, who had a trial with the Red Sox two years ago, is seeking an infield berth with Waco in the Texas league now.

Ray Caldwell, former Cleveland Indian and New York Yankee pitcher, has signed with the Akron Central league club. He will be used as pitching coach and will take his turn in the box.

Complete satisfaction with San Antonio, Texas, as a spring training camp is seen in the fact that the New York Giants recently announced they would train there the next three years.

"Rube" Brandon, veteran umpire in the Piedmont league, takes his spring training as seriously as any player. Early in March he makes a round of the southern colleges, working in 25 or 30 games.

The New England league schedule calls for 126 games with the opening May 1. The transfer of the Worcester club to New Bedford, the Salem club to Lowell and Attleboro to Haverhill was ratified.

Marty Baylin, knuckleball pitcher, has been returned to the Asheville club of the Sally league by Memphis. The rightlander had failed to come to a salary understanding with the Southern league club.

WINNERS HIT FEW BUT TIMELY; LOOM GETS TWO TRIPLES

SOUTHSIDE STAGES TWO DOUBLE PLAYS AT CRUCIAL MOMENTS TO HOLD Y.

FINAL INNING RALLY BY "Y" NETS TWO RUNS; DOUBLE PLAYS SENSATIONAL

Although they outthit their opponents, the Y. M. C. A. lost to the Southsiders, 8 to 3, in a city league ball game at Rosko's flying field last evening.

In breaking in four new players the Y. M. C. A. made four errors while the S. S. played flawless ball in the field. Timely hits gave the Southsiders the victory.

The winners got going right away in the first. Hanson got a single, Loom cracked out a three-base hit and came in on the same hit after Carlson made a freak wild throw to third. Hautala walked and stole second and scored when Swan Erickson singled.

Two walks and two singles brought in three runs for the Southside in the third while in the fifth Loom swiped the ball for a triple, Hautala and Erickson struck out. Bernard walked and on a double steal Loom came home.

Nothing did the scoring for the South Side boys in the sixth when he hit to Fitzharris who threw wild to first, making second on the error and scoring on Hanson's single.

George Erickson, playing his first game of the season for the Y. M. C. A., got a double to start off the game and came home on Peterson's triple.

A double play, Hautala to Bedal to Hanson, prevented the Y. M. C. A. from scoring in the 3rd. Engbretson was caught on second and Erickson on first, Wally Anderson hit for a double, Peterson got to first after being hit by a pitched ball and Houghton fled to center.

In the seventh, Fitzharris singled, Engbretson was hit by a pitched ball and George Erickson filled the sacks on a single base hit. Wally Anderson got a two-base hit, scoring Fitzharris and Engbretson. The game came to a sensational finish by S. S. making a double play, catching Erickson at the home plate and Wally Anderson at second.

Hitting honors went to Loom who cracked out two triples and a single. Fitzharris relieved Whitlock as pitcher for the "Y" in the fourth while Hautala went the distance for the winners.

BARNETT'S TRIGO WINS ENGLISH DERBY TODAY

WALTER GAY RUNS SECOND AND BRIENZ IS THIRD IN RACE

TRIGO WAS AN OUTSIDER IN THE BETTING, PAYING 33 TO 1 ODDS

By TOM CREEDON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Epsom Downs, England, June 5—

W. Barnett's Trigo won the English derby today.

Trigo was an outsider in the betting, paying 33 to 1. Walter Gay was 100 to 3 and Brienz, 50 to 1.

Twenty-six went to the post in the world's greatest horse race. They were off at 3:07 P. M.

Lord Derby's Hunter Moon ran fourth.

Lord Astor's Cragadour and Major McAlmont's Mister Jinks, the popular choices in the betting, were out of the money. Kopl, also heavily played, fell during the running of the race.

A tremendous throng, including Prince of Wales, witnessed the race which was run in a light rain.

En Grade finished fifth.

Trigo won by a length and a half. Walter Gay was two lengths in front of Brienz.

Hunter's Moon set the pace for most of the race, after which he tired. Lord Derby's colt was leading at the quarter mile, with Le Voleur in pursuit. At Tattenham Corner, the winner moved up in contention and raced Hunter's Moon into defeat.

The winner's time for the race, which is at approximately a mile and a half, was 2:36 2-5.

J. Marshall rode the winner. J. Fox was astride Walter Gay, R. Jones on Brienz and T. Weston on Hunter's Moon.

PLANT WILD RICE IN FIVE LAKES

FIRST SHIPMENT OF 100 POUNDS IS BEGINNING IN STOCKING OF LAKES

E. W. McCullough, commissioner of fish and game, sent 100 pounds of wild rice today to local sportsmen through A. P. Cardle, district deputy game warden. Carl Wright of Brainerd and Frank Baldrige of Island View Lodge on Cross Lake planted the rice in five different lakes, three west of Brainerd and two near Cross Lake.

This is the beginning of the stocking of district lakes with the natural food for migratory birds. Mr. McCullough believes strongly that one of the most important parts of the game commission's work is the restocking of the lakes with fish and food for wild fowls. It is their intention to stock many of the lakes with wild rice which attracts the puddler ducks, such as the mallard, the teal, etc., and to plant other lakes with foods such as wild celery and wapato which attracts the deep feeder ducks such as the blue bill, greater scaup or large blue bill and canvasback.

"We have in this territory many mallards, teal and blue bill, but the canvasback are not nearly as common as they could be made by the planting of more wild celery.

J. McGOVERN SEES BRILLIANT FUTURE FOR GOLF COURSES

SAYS PINE BEACH COURSE IS EQUAL TO ANY IN NORTHWEST; WILL WRITE ABOUT IT

MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL SPORTS EDITOR FAVORS HOLDING STATE TOURNEY THERE

Johnny McGovern, sports editor of the Minneapolis Journal, places the Pine Beach golf course on Gull lake on an equal basis with the best in the northwest.

After playing the course this week with his host, Henry C. Mills, Brainerd, the sports authority remarked that the greens at Harrison's was even superior to the Minnikahda course where the 1927 National Amateur golf tournament was held.

Mr. McGovern states that he sees no reason why the state amateur tournament cannot be arranged to be held at the Pine Beach course after housing accommodations have been provided. He will express his opinion on the course in an illustrated story to be published in the Journal at an early date.

Can Golden Bears Repeat?

By QUIN HALL
ON THE afternoon of June 24th, the historic Poughkeepsie regatta will be paddled on the equally historic Hudson river.
Every year, this rowing classic attracts the best crews in the country. The fans of the sport either drape their frames along the river bank in advantageous positions, or are tooted along the banks of the Hudson on open air cars manipulated by the railroads. (Incidentally we wonder what they do with those trick cars for the other 364 days of the year?)
Last year, the Golden Bears of the University of California, under the tutelage of Ky Ebright, former University of Washington cox-

swain, won the big event. They did more than win it. They even shattered a record which had stood for years and been highly respected. The Bears of 1928 were a miraculous crew. They not only tipped over the water bucket at Poughkeepsie but they won the elimination series in the trials for the Olympics, which were held at Philadelphia; and at Amsterdam, later in the summer, they beat the world's best at the Olympiad.
Ebright set a high mark for himself last year. He had the opportunity, of course, to do so because of the Olympics. There'll be no Olympics this Summer but Ky and his Bears are determined to repeat their last year's feat on the Hudson later in the month. The California coach has prac-

SERVANT GIRL DUPES GERMANS

Victims Almost Insisted on Being Tricked, "Princess" Claims.

Erfurt, Germany.—This little city is having a good laugh at the expense of hundreds of persons who have been fooled by a German servant girl posing as the Princess Margaret, morganatic wife of Kronprinz William, who defrauded many of them out of thousands of dollars, to say nothing of clothes and jewelry. The girl, Martha Barth, got off with a light sentence when she told the judge how those she tricked were so insistent upon being tricked, preferring to believe she was actually the princess attempting to conceal her plight as much as possible.

Martha Barth came to Erfurt about two years ago. She is the daughter of a forester of noble birth, Baron Von Preusch-Brandenstein. Her mother is a peasant woman who lived with her in Erfurt. Since 1921 Martha has spent two years in prison on three separate convictions—once for forgery and twice for theft.

Sorry for Hohenzollerns.

They had been but a few days in Erfurt when Martha visited the millinery shop of the Herold sisters. She bought a cheap hat and chatted with the two elderly spinsters. They talked about the hard times, about the good old days when Thuringia had a ruling dynasty.

Three days later Frau Barth again appeared in the little store of the Herold sisters. Mathilde again mentioned the kaiser, and Martha remarked—very discreetly—that she was a close relative of the former emperor.

Next day, however, she again went to the store, and when the sisters pressed her to tell of her relationship with the imperial family she gave them the story, asking the sisters not to tell anybody about it because she was incognito in Erfurt.

She was the daughter of the Princess Sophie, sister of the kaiser and queen of Greece, she told the two sisters. She lived in Sofia, where she met the German kronprinz, who was visiting the Bulgarian capital.

A love match ensued and she came to Berlin with the kronprinz, who wished to marry her. The kaiser was furious but the empress wanted her son to be happy and arranged a secret marriage.

It was a morganatic marriage, of course, which had to be annulled later in order to allow the kronprinz to contract a new marriage for reasons of state. But they still loved each other and met secretly rather often. The poor kronprinz had no money and was unable to obtain any. Therefore she, his former wife, was trying to help him.

Sisters Are Thrilled.

The spinsters listened to this romantic story with rapture. Would her highness allow them to help her, and to collect some money for his imperial highness? Oh, they would be glad to do it!

But Martha refused very severely and very decidedly.

The next day her highness came back and condescended to accept 500 marks for the kronprinz. But she stipulated, no one must know about it.

But the sisters could not withstand the temptation, and they told their friends about the Princess Margaret. Before long hundreds of people shared the so-called secret. Well-to-do people came to Martha and offered financial aid, which was graciously accepted.

At length the Herold sisters parted with all their savings and Martha became so well known in the city of Erfurt that she felt exposure to be imminent. She wrote from Berlin to the Herold sisters, telling them that in a few days everything would be straightened out and that the money which they had expended for the kronprinz would be returned to them in full. The two sisters, overjoyed, showed the letter to a lawyer, who promptly communicated with the police and told the amiable spinsters that they had been fooled.

Two weeks later Martha Barth, alias Princess Margaret of Prussia, morganatic wife of Kronprinz William and daughter of the queen of Greece, was arrested in Berlin in the cow stable of the former imperial castle Bellevue, where she worked as a servant girl. To the last she remained faithful to the imperial dynasty!

The court sentenced Martha to two years in prison.

Cat's Sight in Dark

A cat's whiskers have no relation to its sense of smell. Although a cat's eyesight is excellent, at night it is supplemented by the highly sensitive feelers, or long hairs, that project from the muzzle and above the eyes, each springing from a follicle from which a special nerve communicates with the brain. With the use of these a cat is able to feel its way about in the dark without difficulty.

When Ewe Disowns Lamb Stanchion Comes Handy

Occasionally a young ewe, and even an older one that is in poor condition with a scant milk supply, will not own her lamb. A little patience on the part of the shepherd will usually bring favorable results. The ewe will have to be held for the lamb to suckle and when the milk flow starts she will usually take to the lamb. If the ewe becomes ferocious and fights the little one she should be confined in a stanchion, made by driving two panels into the ground and wiring them at the top. In this way she cannot injure the lamb and it will suck in spite of her efforts.

If the ewe has more milk than the lamb will take she should be milked out clean at least once a day for several days. The first milk appearing within the udder is intended to be consumed only at the beginning of the lamb's life, and if retained in the udder for a number of days it is likely to sicken the lamb.

In case a lamb dies and the mother has lots of milk it is often advisable to put the twin lamb of another ewe with her. The best way to do this is to skin the dead lamb, pulling the legs out like stripping off a stocking, sprinkling a little salt over the inside, and then fastening the skin on the twin lamb that is to be transferred. The ewe will generally by this scent accept it as her own. Often by sprinkling some of the ewe's milk over a lamb, and by rubbing some of the secretion about the udder on the lamb, she will adopt it.

TIMELY HINTS FOR BUYING STALLION

Keep in Mind Importance of Pure Breeding.

In buying a stallion one should keep in mind the importance of pure breeding, soundness, individual excellence, potency, and the reliability of the party from whom purchased.

It should be remembered that pure breeding is important in a breeding sire as it means that his type has been fixed by a long line of ancestors of similar type, and that he will therefore transmit his qualities with more certainty than the grand sire. It is well to keep in mind also that there are certain families within every breed that stand out because of their superior excellence, and that such families are especially desirable.

It is a good safeguard to have a horse examined and certified sound by a competent and reliable veterinarian before buying. If this is not possible, a guarantee should be secured that the horse will pass the requirements of the stallion registration board, and payment should be withheld until a license has been secured.

A horse may be pure bred and sound, and yet an undesirable individual. A horse which would not himself be a high-priced gelding if castrated can hardly be expected to sire high-priced geldings.

In buying, a guarantee should be secured that the horse will prove a 50 per cent foal getter, under conditions with which you can comply, and that failing to do so the purchase price will be refunded in cash. Remember that such a guarantee is of little value unless given by a responsible party.

Before buying a stallion it is well to inform yourself as to the reliability of the party with whom you expect to deal. There are plenty of reliable breeders and dealers from whom good stallions can be secured and they are worthy of your patronage. There are also men in the business of selling stallions who are not reliable and it is well to avoid them.

The color and markings should be carefully examined to see that they correspond with those called for in the pedigree. The age as shown by his teeth should also be checked with the date of foaling.—Bulletin No. 7, Minnesota Stallion Registration Board.

Astronomical Instrument

Astrolabe was the name formerly given to any circular instrument for observing the stars. Astrolabes were of two kinds—spherical and planispheric. They were used mainly during the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries.

Too Many Skeletons

The British college of arms says that fewer persons these days are tracing their ancestry. They have probably learned from the experience of others that when it gets back to a certain distance it isn't so hot.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Health Hint

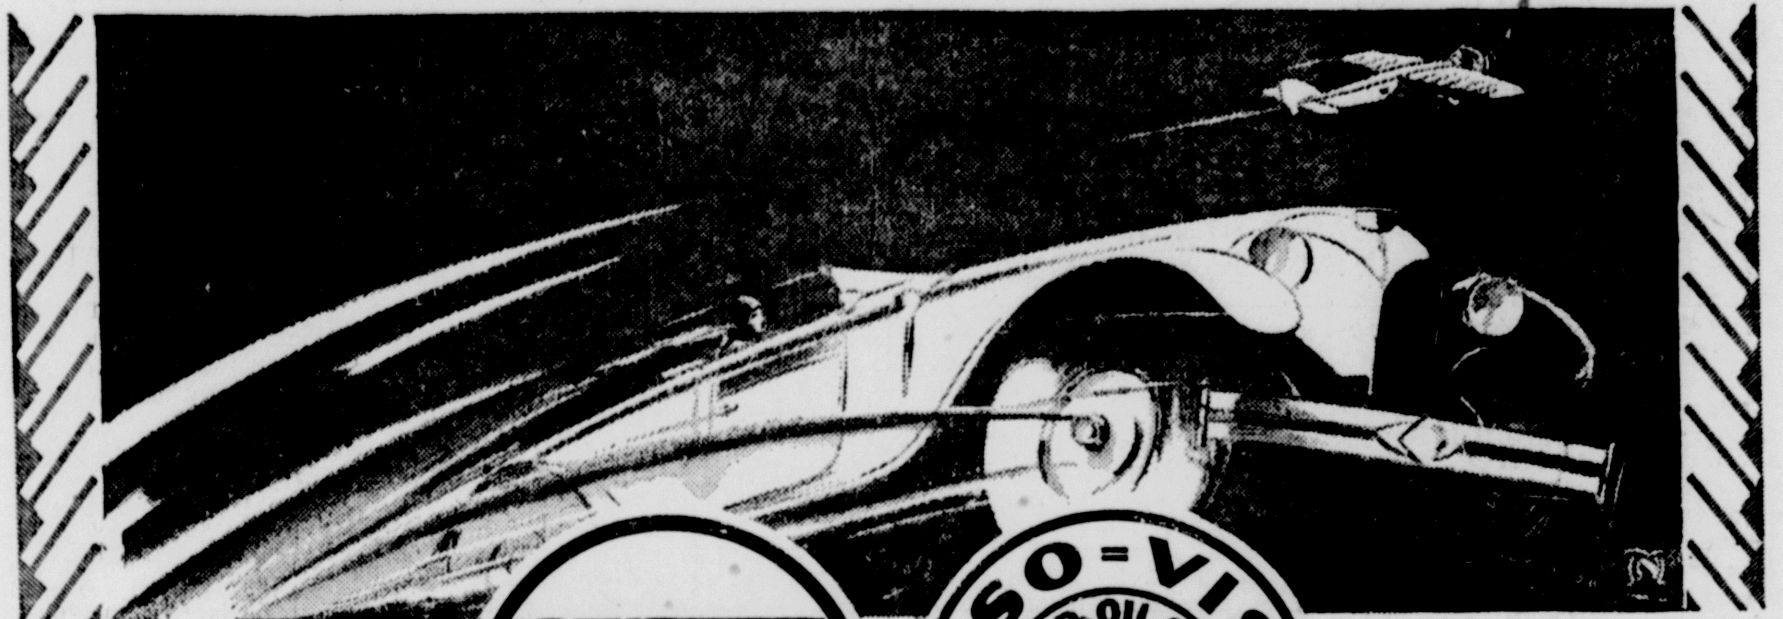

An infant's room should be aired regularly, even during the winter months. If it is done gradually, at first for only ten minutes and then increased, even rainy weather will do no harm. Such airing actually hardens a baby against colds.

Odd Human Foods

"Uncooked monkey brains on the half skull, pickled water beetles, fried locusts and cobra and python steaks are specimens of the many strange and unusual foods which grace the world's dinner tables," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic society.

MOTOR OILS You can trust

Polarine

Iso-Vis

It's a hard life for the modern motor! Traffic is congested. Engines are built with higher compressions. Cars are driven faster. Motors run hotter. Correct lubrication is more important than ever before. Only the richest and sturdiest motor oil will stand up under the strain!

Polarine will do it! Polarine is rich—sturdy—steadfast! It covers every frictional surface of the engine with a protecting cushion of oil.

By draining the crankcase every 500 miles and refilling with fresh Polarine, you insure satisfactory lubrication of your car—at minimum cost.

Iso-Vis is an oil of unusual quality. It lubricates the engine faithfully—to stand up under the strain of today's driving. Like Polarine, Iso-Vis is rich and sturdy and steadfast.

No need to drain the crankcase so frequently if you use Iso-Vis. This new type, constant viscosity motor oil gives a new type of lubrication service. It will not thin out! It wears and wears and wears!

For smooth motor miles—and a long life to your engine—use Polarine or Iso-Vis. They are dependable products of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). They are the motor oils you can trust.

Being Tricked, "Princess" Claims.

Erfurt, Germany.—This little city is having a good laugh at the expense of hundreds of persons who have been fooled by a German servant girl posing as the Princess Margaret, morganatic wife of Kronprinz William, who defrauded many of them out of thousands of dollars, to say nothing of clothes and jewelry. The girl, Martha Barth, got off with a light sentence when she told the judge how those she tricked were so insistent upon being tricked, preferring to believe she was actually the princess attempting to conceal her plight as much as possible.

Martha Barth came to Erfurt about two years ago. She is the daughter of a forester of noble birth, Baron Von Preusch-Brandenstein. Her mother is a peasant woman who lived with her in Erfurt. Since 1921 Martha has spent two years in prison on three separate convictions—once for forgery and twice for theft.

Sorry for Hohenzollerns.

They had been but a few days in Erfurt when Martha visited the millinery shop of the Herold sisters. She bought a cheap hat and chatted with the two elderly spinsters. They talked about the hard times, about the good old days when Thuringia had a ruling dynasty.

Three days later Frau Barth again appeared in the little store of the Herold sisters. Mathilde again mentioned the kaiser, and Martha remarked—very discreetly—that she was a close relative of the former emperor.

Next day, however, she again went to the store, and when the sisters pressed her to tell of her relationship with the imperial family she gave them the story, asking the sisters not to tell anybody about it because she was incognito in Erfurt.

She was the daughter of the Princess Sophie, sister of the kaiser and queen of Greece, she told the two sisters. She lived in Sofia, where she met the German kronprinz, who was visiting the Bulgarian capital.

A love match ensued and she came to Berlin with the kronprinz, who wished to marry her. The kaiser was furious but the empress wanted her son to be happy and arranged a secret marriage.

It was a morganatic marriage, of course, which had to be annulled later in order to allow the kronprinz to contract a new marriage for reasons of state. But they still loved each other and met secretly rather often. The poor kronprinz had no money and was unable to obtain any. Therefore she, his former wife, was trying to help him.

Sisters Are Thrilled.

The spinsters listened to this romantic story with rapture. Would her highness allow them to help her, and to collect some money for his imperial highness? Oh, they would be glad to do it!

But Martha refused very severely and very decidedly.

The next day her highness came back and condescended to accept 500 marks for the kronprinz. But she stipulated, no one must know about it.

But the sisters could not withstand the temptation, and they told their friends about the Princess Margaret. Before long hundreds of people shared the so-called secret. Well-to-do people came to Martha and offered financial aid, which was graciously accepted.

At length the Herold sisters parted with all their savings and Martha became so well known in the city of Erfurt that she felt exposure to be imminent. She wrote from Berlin to the Herold sisters, telling them that in a few days everything would be straightened out and that the money which they had expended for the kronprinz would be returned to them in full. The two sisters, overjoyed, showed the letter to a lawyer, who promptly communicated with the police and told the amiable spinsters that they had been fooled.

Two weeks later Martha Barth, alias Princess Margaret of Prussia, morganatic wife of Kronprinz William and daughter of the queen of Greece, was arrested in Berlin in the cow stable of the former imperial castle Bellevue, where she worked as a servant girl. To the last she remained faithful to the imperial dynasty!

The court sentenced Martha to two years in prison.

Cat's Sight in Dark

A cat's whiskers have no relation to its sense of smell. Although a cat's eyesight is excellent, at night it is supplemented by the highly sensitive feelers, or long hairs, that project from the muzzle and above the eyes, each springing from a follicle from which a special nerve communicates with the brain. With the use of these a cat is able to feel its way about in the dark without difficulty.

Occasionally a young ewe, and even an older one that is in poor condition with a scant milk supply, will not own her lamb. A little patience on the part of the shepherd will usually bring favorable results. The ewe will have to be held for the lamb to suckle and when the milk flow starts she will usually take to the lamb. If the ewe becomes ferocious and fights the little one she should be confined in a stanchion, made by driving two panels into the ground and wiring them at the top. In this way she cannot injure the lamb and it will suck in spite of her efforts.

If the ewe has more milk than the lamb will take she should be milked out clean at least once a day for several days. The first milk appearing within the udder is intended to be consumed only at the beginning of the lamb's life, and if retained in the udder for a number of days it is likely to sicken the lamb.

In case a lamb dies and the mother has lots of milk it is often advisable to put the twin lamb of another ewe with her. The best way to do this is to skin the dead lamb, pulling the legs out like stripping off a stocking, sprinkling a little salt over the inside, and then fastening the skin on the twin lamb that is to be transferred. The ewe will generally by this scent accept it as her own. Often by sprinkling some of the ewe's milk over a lamb, and by rubbing some of the secretion about the udder on the lamb, she will adopt it.

TIMELY HINTS FOR BUYING STALLION

Keep in Mind Importance of Pure Breeding.

In buying a stallion one should keep in mind the importance of pure breeding, soundness, individual excellence, potency, and the reliability of the party from whom purchased.

It should be remembered that pure breeding is important in a breeding sire as it means that his type has been fixed by a long line of ancestors of similar type, and that he will therefore transmit his qualities with more certainty than the grand sire. It is well to keep in mind also that there are certain families within every breed that stand out because of their superior excellence, and that such families are especially desirable.

It is a good safeguard to have a horse examined and certified sound by a competent and reliable veterinarian before buying. If this is not possible, a guarantee should be secured that the horse will pass the requirements of the stallion registration board, and payment should be withheld until a license has been secured.

A horse may be pure bred and sound, and yet an undesirable individual. A horse which would not himself be a high-priced gelding if castrated can hardly be expected to sire high-priced geldings.

In buying, a guarantee should be secured that the horse will prove a 50 per cent foal getter, under conditions with which you can comply, and that failing to do so the purchase price will be refunded in cash. Remember that such a guarantee is of little value unless given by a responsible party.

Before buying a stallion it is well to inform yourself as to the reliability of the party with whom you expect to deal. There are plenty of reliable breeders and dealers from whom good stallions can be secured and they are worthy of your patronage. There are also men in the business of selling stallions who are not reliable and it is well to avoid them.

The color and markings should be carefully examined to see that they correspond with those called for in the pedigree. The age as shown by his teeth should also be checked with the date of foaling.—Bulletin No. 7, Minnesota Stallion Registration Board.

Astronomical Instrument
Astrolabe was the name formerly given to any circular instrument for observing the stars. Astrolabes were of two kinds—spherical and planispheric. They were used mainly during the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries.

Too Many Skeletons

Health Hint

An infant's room should be aired regularly, even during the winter months. If it is done gradually, at first for only ten minutes and then increased, even rainy weather will do no harm. Such airing actually hardens a baby against colds.

MOTOR OILS

You can trust

Polarine

Iso-Vis

It's a hard life for the modern motor! Traffic is congested. Engines are built with higher compressions. Cars are driven faster. Motors run hotter. Correct lubrication is more important than ever before. Only the richest and sturdiest motor oil will stand up under the strain!

Polarine will do it! Polarine is rich—sturdy—steadfast! It covers every frictional surface of the engine with a protecting cushion of oil.

By draining the crankcase every 500 miles and refilling with fresh Polarine, you insure satisfactory lubrication of your car—at minimum cost.

Iso-Vis is an oil of unusual quality. It lubricates the engine faithfully—to stand up under the strain of today's driving. Like Polarine, Iso-Vis is rich and sturdy and steadfast.

No need to drain the crankcase so frequently if you use Iso-Vis. This new type, constant viscosity motor oil gives a new type of lubrication service. It will not thin out! It wears and wears and wears!

For smooth motor miles—and a long life to your engine—use Polarine or Iso-Vis. They are dependable products of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). They are the motor oils you can trust.

3 MOTHERCRAFT CLASSES HELD

Miss Caroline Walz, County Nurse, Fills Role of Teacher to 29 Girls Last Month

41 Children Examined at Baby and Pre-school Clinic Conducted at Crosby

The time of Miss Caroline Walz, county nurse, during the month of May was taken up principally in teaching, her monthly report states. Miss Walz conducted three mothercraft classes with an enrollment of 29 girls who completed their work. Examinations were given and each girl received a certificate from the Division of Child Hygiene of the State Board of Health.

Her report states that the members of these classes were very much interested in their work and a most splendid cooperation was the result.

The report continues: "The Pequot girls gave a demonstration for the P. T. A.

A class in home hygiene and care of the sick completed the course and another class with an enrollment of 19 members was organized by one of the ladies at Dykeman. These meetings were most delightful as well as educational.

Two P. T. A. meetings were attended and a talk given at each.

Eleven homes were visited.

Fifty-seven visits were made including nursing, instructive and business calls.

Fourteen class room visits were made.

Twenty pupils were seen in class room inspection.

Six were given individual inspection.

Nine health talks were given.

Clinics

One tuberculosis clinic was held with an attendance of seven patients, five new and two old cases.

A pre-school clinic was held in the Oak Lawn schools.

Out of ten children examined, two apparently had no defects.

A baby and pre-school clinic was held at Crosby. Forty-one children were examined. Fourteen were babies.

These clinics are so worth-while, as defects are detected in early childhood and can be taken care of before serious trouble results.

Poor Relief to be Discussed at Regional Conference for Social Workers at Cloquet

"Since court was in session the past month considerable time was spent in the office. Five affidavits alleging contempt of court were filed and of the five persons so charged three appeared before the court and were given jail sentences suspended upon the payment of designated amounts. Of the other two, one was ill and the second could not be located." Miss Rebecca Cassell, secretary states in her monthly report for May.

The report continues: "Two investigations were made for the juvenile court.

"Temporary care was provided for a girl from the Home School at Sauk Center until plans could be made by the school for her.

"We need a rocking chair and a day bed or sanitary cot.

"On June 12 the annual regional conference of all interested in social welfare will be held at Cloquet. The chief topic of discussion will be poor relief. We should like to have as many representatives as possible attend from Crow Wing county organizations interested in relief or other kinds of welfare work."

3 MOTHERCRAFT CLASSES HELD

Miss Caroline Walz, County Nurse, Fills Role of Teacher to 29 Girls Last Month

41 Children Examined at Baby and Pre-school Clinic Conducted at Crosby

The time of Miss Caroline Walz, county nurse, during the month of May was taken up principally in teaching, her monthly report states. Miss Walz conducted three mothercraft classes with an enrollment of 29 girls who completed their work. Examinations were given and each girl received a certificate from the Division of Child Hygiene of the State Board of Health.

Her report states that the members of these classes were very much interested in their work and a most splendid cooperation was the result.

The report continues:

"The Pequot girls gave a demonstration for the P. T. A.

A class in home hygiene and care of the sick completed the course and another class with an enrollment of 19 members was organized by one of the ladies at Dykeman. These meetings were most delightful as well as educational.

Two P. T. A. meetings were attended and a talk given at each.

Eleven homes were visited.

Fifty-seven visits were made including nursing, instructive and business calls.

Fourteen class room visits were made.
Twenty pupils were seen in class room inspection.
Six were given individual inspection.
Nine health talks were given.
One tuberculosis clinic was held with an attendance of seven patients, five new and two old cases.
A pre-school clinic was held in the Oak Lawn schools.
Out of ten children examined, two apparently had no defects.
A baby and pre-school clinic was held at Crosby. Forty-one children were examined. Fourteen were babies.
These clinics are so worth-while, as defects are detected in early childhood and can be taken care of before serious trouble results.

YOUNG PEOPLE IN CONVENTION

Young People's League, Minnesota District, Met at Platte Lake Church, Sunday, June 2

REV. W. PLANZ SPEAKS

Delegates Welcomed by Rev. Heidtke, Pastor of Immanuel Church

The third annual convention of the Young People's League, Minnesota district, of the Lutheran Synod of Buffalo (headquarters Buffalo, N. Y.) was held at the Immanuel church of Platte Lake, Rev. Heidtke pastor, on Sunday, June 2, with meetings in the morning and afternoon.

Rev. W. Planz of Waltham, Minn. (100 miles south of St. Paul) delivered the message at the special services in the morning, to a well filled house, to be exact there were 185 in attendance. The inspiring message was based on the words of Holy Writ: "Exercise thyself unto godliness . . . for it is profitable unto all things." 1 Tim. 4:7.

Beside the local congregation Lake Elmo (near Stillwater) had the largest delegation, having chartered a bus, 38 coming in the bus and 10 in their own cars; the next largest delegation was from Hillman, 30 in number; in all aggregate there were 125 people from the various congregations, not counting the local league.

The afternoon meeting and business session was opened with song, scripture reading, and prayer led by the president of the league, Rev. A. Ewald of Hope Church St. Paul. Whereupon the president addressed the league in earnest words of admonition and encouragement to carry on the good work of the Lord amid the most adverse circumstances, always making the best of it. The short talk by Simon Fredericksen of the local society was enjoyed by all. It was decided that the league in the coming year raise $150 in support of missions for at home, and Kurdistan, where one of local men is stationed.

Election of officers was held with the following result: President, Rev. A. Hasseley of Lake Elmo; Vice President, Miss Vaneskie of Lake Elmo; Secretary-Treasurer, Harry Boeder of the local society.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

CRYSTAL shut her eyes. The door squeaked on its hinges, a slow, wailing sound . . . and it was the hall door, not the dressing room door.

Maybe it wasn't anybody, maybe it was the wind, the janitor, the landlord—maybe it wasn't Avery, Avery couldn't have slipped through the dressing room into the hall without them seeing. . . .

She opened her eyes, her teeth chattering, clinging to Ralph for support.

The dressing room door remained securely shut. But teetering in the other door, against a background of white paint and pale landscape paper, stood Adelina Haines, her mouth gaping.

Adelina's face was almost purple; her black velvet hat with the pink satin facing, was tilted rakishly over one ear. She had gained much weight in the last few months and flesh billowed almost obscenely under the blue foulard dress and the light tan coat that wouldn't button.

It was Ralph who pulled himself together first. He said awkwardly, "Of course I didn't know it was you, Mrs. Haines. I beg your pardon. I—I didn't know who it was."

He had released Crystal, who stood leaning against the high-backed Italian chair, apparently incapable of speech. But Adelina shrank from the look she saw in her daughter's eye.

"I'm sure I didn't know I was intruding," she began apologetically. "I was going to surprise you, and I heard talking, so I waited a minute."

Ralph, brick red to the roots of his fair hair, lit a cigarette with shaking hands. "You'll want to be alone, of course," he said, with all of his man-of-the-world air that he could summon, "so I'll be on my way. I'm afraid I startled you, Mrs. Haines. I—I thought I'm sorry. I've been nervous and on edge all day. Well, see you soon, Crystal. Good night, Mrs. Haines."

Even after he had gone Crystal couldn't find her breath. She had no words to tell her mother what her coming had meant. The end of her hopes mostly likely. One minute more and Ralph would have asked her to be his wife. One minute more, and her future would have been assured. A trip to Europe, wealth, position . . .

She turned on her mother with deadly calm. "I hope you are satisfied. Snooty, as usual. Ralph was proposing to me. I'd have married him at once. You drove him away, that's all."

Mrs. Haines, who would have given her right arm to see Crystal safely married to Ralph, blindly groped for a rocking chair and, finding none, sank gingerly on the end of the couch. Automatically she mopped her shiny face with a lace trimmed handkerchief and lifted her fat arms to draw the pins from her hat. That done, she began to feel a little better. And Crystal's calm reassured her.

Things couldn't be as bad as the girl wanted her to believe.

"Well, don't worry, pet, he'll be back if I know anything about young men in love," she began gustily.

Crystal didn't answer. She hadn't moved since her mother came in. She sat on the edge of the big chair, staring into space, hugging her knees.

Mrs. Haines opened the small black bag she carried and laid a bright pink nightgown, an ivory comb that had lost a few teeth, and a small jar of preserves on the table. "Fig jam. I thought I'd bring you some, I know how you like it."

Crystal groaned. Fig jam. When you've just lost the boat for Europe. She lifted her eyes, and studied her mother with ill concealed disgust. This painted, bloated-looking blonde, bursting out of her clothes, clinging here to ruin her life . . . ruin everything . . . "Why don't you stay on the ranch where you belong?" she burst out bitterly.

"Fut, fut," Adelina said, reassured by the beginnings of a fight. "That's no way to talk to your mother. I won't have it, do you hear me, Crystal? Mama has a right to insist on respect . . . where's your bed? I hope it is a good one. I was always a hand for a good bed. You don't keep house very good, love; there's dust all over. I told you right along you better live in the YW and not take an apartment. I know how girls are. And another thing, pet, it isn't quite nice for a young girl alone. I know Ralph respects you and all, but I don't like him coming here to see you at night and no chaperon. It don't look just right. When you're married—"

"Will you get to the point and tell me why you're here?" Crystal cut in icily.

A shadow darkened the mother's face. "On account of the letter Daphne wrote Abner. I got to worrying. I don't sleep very good any more—"

"You haven't lost any weight!" "Don't talk to mama like that, pet. Mama knows you don't mean it but it hurts. Mama has so much to worry over."

"I haven't anything to worry over. Nothing at all! Just Ralph, and the rent, and my work and—"

She broke off suddenly. What was that? A terrible noise in the dressing room . . . Avery, of course. Avery, whom she had forgotten in the stress of other things. Mrs. Haines jumped and clutched at Crystal—"What was that?"

"Oh, the apartment next door."

"Sounded like it was right here. I'm that nervous, Crystal. I get nightmares. Your father isn't long for this world, and he's got that way of sleeping with his mouth open, as if he was dead already . . . I get to thinking he's dead in the night. I'm afraid of dead people, Crystal. I always was. I'm afraid—"

"I'm afraid he won't die!" "But not with me, alone, pet. That was another thing, dearie, I thought maybe you'd come home with me for a spell. I'm far from a well woman. It ain't right for me to be alone in that house. If you'd just come for a couple of weeks even, for a little vacation. Just so I could get over these nightmares I have alone in the house that way and—"

Crystal saw that her mother was in deadly earnest. Her pale eyes were pleading, her hard mouth twitching. Something like pity stirred her.

"Why, Ma," she began hesitatingly.

And then the dressing room door opened and Avery Woodward, hat in hand, came out.

Mrs. Haines saw him first. "Crystal— that man—he—he— Crystal!"

Avery bowed with great politeness, sweeping the floor with his greasy black hat. "Sorry if I alarmed you, lady. I'm the carpenter. I braced the shelf for you, Miss Garretty, and, er . . . fixed everything up."

"The carpenter at— at night?" Mrs. Haines cried. "Crystal this man is no carpenter. Don't let him go—I'll call the landlord. I'll—"

"Oh, Mama— shut up!" Crystal shouted. "You've done enough damage for one day. You don't know how things are in the city. They have a carpenter right here in the building. You can get him any time. That's all for tonight. Tony, but you can come in tomorrow and look at the refrigerator—"

"Tony— alias Avery, didn't budge. That's all, I said!" "A dollar and a half for the shelf," he said, grinning, and the $18.50 for the window seat and bookcases I made last month. That makes an even $20. I'd like to get it tonight, lady. I got my rent to pay."

Crystal could have choked him with her bare hands. "You'll have to come back tomorrow!" she said angrily. "Now get out, can't you see I have no time for you?"

Adelina opened the black bag, took out a twenty dollar bill. "If you owe this man," she began.

Crystal took it savagely, and almost threw it at Avery. "There— get out!"

"Thank you kindly, lady."

"He didn't receipt the bill," Mrs. Haines said when he had gone. "And Crystal, you have no call to talk that way, he seemed real refined for a carpenter. You ain't yourself here. You better come back home with Mama. We'll get Abner to hire a good cook, and you can have the living room every night. Abner goes to bed early now. And we'll invite Ralph, and—"

Crystal, at the end of her resources, laid her head in her mother's lap and wept.

"There, there," Adelina comforted. She patted her daughter's golden head. But she was thinking of Daphne. Busily, craftily laying her plans. Plans that would bring Ralph to Crystal, make him hers forever, and soon.

LIVE STOCK NEWS

COMPARISON OF PREPARED FEEDS

Surest Way to Find Values Is to Compare Costs.

With so many prepared feeds for live stock on the market, and numerous salesmen offering them, the farmer is sometimes at a loss to know the value of these feeds when compared to natural live stock feeds grown on his farm.

The surest method of determining these values is to compare the costs, and the complete chemical analysis of the prepared feeds as given on the outside of the sacks in which they are sold, with the chemical analysis of farm-grown feeds and the well-known commercial concentrates. This is the statement of E. J. Maynard, associate animal husbandman at the Colorado Agricultural college.

A distinction should be drawn by the feeder between prepared feeds sold under a trade name and commercial concentrates such as cottonseed meal, linseed oil cake, beet molasses and dried beet pulp. These last named are well-known by-products in the manufacture of standard commodities and have a definite composition with which feeders are familiar. They have a well-recognized place in fattening rations which has been established by years of practical feeding and experimental work. They are usually high in either carbohydrates or protein, and for this reason are often conveniently used in balancing farm-grown rations.

Prepared feeds on the other hand may be of simple or complex composition. They may contain only molasses and a cut hay, or they may contain other feeds such as corn, barley, dried beet pulp, mill screenings or sweepings, ground oat hulls, straw molasses, linseed meal or cottonseed meal with possibly some minerals, usually salt and charcoal.

"If a concentrated feed is needed and a prepared feed is considered, it can be compared to other feeds available on the basis of the protein and carbohydrate it contains," says Maynard.

Although the analysis of a feed is often given on a digestible nutrient basis, this basis cannot be used in a comparison of home-grown feeds or ordinary commercial concentrates with most prepared feeds.

Lambs Preferred by

Experienced Feeders

Experienced feeders usually prefer lambs of 60 pounds each or below, provided the lambs are not stunted cull runs. Young, thrifty lambs usually do not leave the range under 60 pounds each. The weights mostly available are between 60 and 70 pounds each.

Black-faced lambs are always a favorite in the feed lots. There is no reason to believe, however, that smooth-bodied, white-faced lambs are not good, profitable gainers and are considered by many feeders as absolutely satisfactory.

The place where the lambs were raised is more important than the face color. Thrifty mountain range lambs are much to be preferred over "pot-bellied" desert lambs with wool full of burrs. There are all sorts of variations between these two extremes. Prices and available supply are according to the desirability of the offering.

After the lambs arrive on the farm there seem to be a number of methods of getting them accustomed to new conditions. Some feed dry hay, salt and water, and turn on a short blue grass pasture for a few days. Others feed a dry feed and then an hour or more on rank growing weeds or after-growth in the meadow. Corral the lambs for two hours and then dry feed.

Feed damaged grain to your hogs and convert grain losses into pork profits.

Altogether too many pigs have been run on pasture without any or a very small amount of grain.

Pigs fed on hulled oats or hulled oats and corn eat less tankage than when fed corn as the only grain.

The water supply of the ewe flock should be clean and fresh and of moderate temperature. Free access should be given to salt.

Farmers who take an annual inventory—and all would find it well to do so—should not forget the dog. He may be an asset or a liability, for he has to be fed and an annual tax has to be paid on him.

Pigs weighing from 100 to 150 pounds are the best size. Smaller pigs are not so well able to look after themselves running among the steers and seldom do as well. As soon as the pigs are big enough for market, they should be sold and replaced by thin pigs.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.
CRYSTAL shut her eyes. The door squeaked on its hinges, a slow, wailing sound . . . and it was the hall door, not the dressing room door.

Maybe it wasn't anybody, maybe it was the wind, the janitor, the landlord—maybe it wasn't Avery. Avery couldn't have slipped through the dressing room into the hall without them seeing. . . . She opened her eyes, her teeth chattering, clinging to Ralph for support.

The dressing room door remained securely shut. But teetering in the other door, against a background of white paint and pale landscape paper, stood Adelina Haines, her mouth gaping.

Adelina's face was almost purple; her black velvet hat with the pink satin facing, was tilted rakishly over one ear. She had gained much weight in the last few months and flesh billowed almost obscenely under the blue foulard dress and the light tan coat that wouldn't button.

It was Ralph who pulled himself together first. He said awkwardly, "Of course I didn't know it was you, Mrs. Haines. I beg your pardon. I—I didn't know who it was."

He had released Crystal, who stood leaning against the high-backed Italian chair, apparently incapable of speech. But Adelina shrank from the look she saw in her daughter's eye.

"I'm sure I didn't know I was intruding," she began apologetically. "I was going to surprise you, and I heard talking, so I waited a minute."

Ralph, brick red to the roots of his fair hair, lit a cigarette with shaking hands. "You'll want to be alone, of course," he said, with all of his man-of-the-world air that he could summon. "Go I'll be on my way. I'm afraid I startled you, Mrs. Haines. I—I thought it was a sneak thief at the door. I'm sorry. I've been nervous and on edge all day. Well, see you soon, Crystal. Good night, Mrs. Haines."

Even after he had gone Crystal couldn't find her breath. She had no words to tell her mother what her coming had meant. The end of her hopes mostly likely. One minute more and Ralph would have asked her to be his wife. One minute more, and her future would have been assured. A trip to Europe, wealth, position . . .

She turned on her mother with deadly calm. "I hope you are satisfied. Snooping, as usual. Ralph was proposing to me. I'd have married him at once. You drove him away, that's all."

Mrs. Haines, who would have given her right arm to see Crystal safely married to Ralph, blindly groped for a rocking chair and, finding none, sank gingerly on the end of the couch. Automatically she mopped her shiny face with a lace trimmed handkerchief and lifted her fat arms to draw the pins from her hat. That done, she began to feel a little better. And Crystal's calm reassured her.

Things couldn't be as bad as the girl wanted her to believe.

"Well, don't worry, pet, he'll be back if I know anything about young men in love," she began glibly.

Crystal didn't answer. She hadn't moved since her mother came in. She sat on the edge of the big chair, staring into space, hugging her knees.

Mrs. Haines opened the small black bag she carried and laid a bright pink nightgown, an ivory comb that had lost a few teeth, and a small jar of preserves on the table. "Fig jam. I thought I'd bring you some, I know how you like it."

Crystal groaned. Fig jam. When you've just lost the boat for Europe. She lifted her eyes, and studied her mother with ill concealed disgust. This painted, bloated-looking bleached blonde, bursting out of her clothes, coming here to ruin her life . . . ruin everything . . . "Why don't you stay on the ranch where you belong," she burst out bitterly.

"Tut, tut," Adelina said, reassured by the beginnings of a fight. "That's no way to talk to your mother. I won't have it, do you hear me, Crystal? Mama has a right to insist on respect . . . where's your bed? I hope it is a good one. I was always a hand for a good bed. You don't keep house very good, love; there's dust all over. I told you right along you better live in the YW and not take an apartment. I know how girls are. And another thing, pet, it isn't quite nice for a young girl alone. I know Ralph respects you and all, but I don't like him coming here to see you at night and no chaperon. It don't look just right. When you're married—"

"Will you get to the point and tell me why you're here?" Crystal cut in icily.

A shadow darkened the mother's face. "On account of the letter Daphne wrote Abner. I got to worrying. I don't sleep very good any more."

"You haven't lost any weight!" "Don't talk to mama like that, pet. Mama knows you don't mean it but it hurts. Mama has so much to worry over."

"I haven't anything to worry over. Nothing at all! Just Ralph, and the rent, and my work and—"

She broke off suddenly. What was that? A terrible noise in the dressing room . . . Avery, of course. Avery, whom she had forgotten in the stress of other things.

Mrs. Haines jumped and clutched at Crystal. "What was that?" "Oh, the apartment next door."

"Sounded like it was right here. I'm that nervous, Crystal. I get nightmares. Your father isn't long for this world, and he's got that way of sleeping with his mouth open, as if he was dead already . . . I get to thinking he's dead in the night. I'm afraid of dead people, Crystal. I always was. I'm afraid."

"But not with me, alone, pet. That was another thing, dear. I thought maybe you'd come home with me for a spell. I'm far from a well woman. It ain't right for me to be alone at that house. If you'd just come for a couple of weeks even for a little vacation. Just so I could get over these nightmares I have alone in the house that way and—"

Crystal saw that her mother was in deadly earnest. Her pale eyes were pleading, her hard mouth twitching. Something like pity stirred her.

"Why, Ma," she began hesitatingly.

And then the dressing room door opened and Avery Woodward, hat in hand, came out.

"Mrs. Haines saw him first," Crystal—that man—he—he—Crystal.

Avery bowed with great politeness, sweeping the floor with his greasy black hat. "Sorry if I alarmed you, lady. I'm the carpenter. I braced the shelf for you, Miss Garroty, and, er . . . fixed everything up."

"The carpenter at—at night?" Mrs. Haines cried. "Crystal this man is no carpenter. Don't let him go—I'll call the landlord. I'll—"

Tony—alias Avery, didn't budge. "That's all, I said."

"A dollar and a half for the shelf," he said, grinning, and the $18.50 for the window seat and bookcases I made last month. That makes an even $20. I'd like to get it tonight, lady. I got my rent to pay."

Crystal could have choked him with her bare hands. "You'll have to come back tomorrow," she said angrily. "Now get out, can't you see I have no time for you!"

Adelina opened the black bag, took out a twenty dollar bill. "If you own this man," she began.

Crystal took it savagely, and almost threw it at Avery. "There—get out!"

"Thank you kindly, lady." "He didn't receipt the bill," Mrs. Haines said when he had gone. "And Crystal, you have no call to talk that way, he seemed real refined for a carpenter. You ain't yourself here. You better come back home with Mama. We'll get Abner to hire a good cook, and you can have the living room every night. Abner goes to bed early now. And we'll invite Ralph, and—"

Crystal, at the end of her resources, laid her head in her mother's lap and wept.

"There, there," Adelina comforted. She patted her daughter's golden head. But she was thinking of Daphne. Basely, craftily laying her plans. Plans that would bring Ralph to Crystal, make him hers forever, and soon.

COMPARISON OF PREPARED FEEDS

Surest Way to Find Values Is to Compare Costs.

With so many prepared feeds for live stock on the market, and numerous salesmen offering them, the farmer is sometimes at a loss to know the value of these feeds when compared to natural live stock feeds grown on his farm.

The surest method of determining these values is to compare the costs, and the complete chemical analysis of the prepared feeds as given on the outside of the sacks in which they are sold, with the chemical analysis of farm-grown feeds and the well-known commercial concentrates. This is the statement of E. J. Maynard, associate animal husbandman at the Colorado Agricultural college.

A distinction should be drawn by the feeder between prepared feeds sold under a trade name and commercial concentrates such as cottonseed meal, linseed oil cake, beet molasses and dried beet pulp. These last named are well-known by-products in the manufacture of standard commodities and have a definite composition with which feeders are familiar. They have a well-recognized place in fattening rations which has been established by years of practical feeding and experimental work. They are usually high in either carbohydrates or protein, and for this reason are often conveniently used in balancing farm-grown rations.

Prepared feeds on the other hand may be of simple or complex composition. They may contain only molasses and a cut hay, or they may contain other feeds such as corn, barley, dried beet pulp, mill screenings or sweepings, ground out hulls, straw molasses, linseed meal or cottonseed meal with possibly some minerals, usually salt and charcoal.

"If a concentrated feed is needed and a prepared feed is considered, it can be compared to other feeds available on the basis of the protein and carbohydrate it contains," says Maynard.

Although the analysis of a feed is often given on a digestible nutrient basis, this basis cannot be used in a comparison of home-grown feeds or ordinary commercial concentrates with most prepared feeds.
